Adverse drug reactions (ADRs) occur commonly in patients presenting to the emergency department (ED). However, the majority of these reactions are not recognized by emergency physicians and therefore not adequately managed. The pharmacist plays an important role in recognizing ADRs in patients presenting to the ED, as he/she is the first point of call for the health care team. The pharmacist should carry out a thorough patient history and carry out an appropriate medication review. Anticoagulants, anti-psychotics and anti-epileptics are the common drug classes associated with significant ADR. Detailed examination of the patient's medical history and a drug history, including medications and over the counter (OTC) drugs, can help identify ADRs. Review of the ED charts for information regarding the patient's signs and symptoms of ADRs is useful. The pharmacist is ideally positioned to act as a liaison between the patient and their health care team. A patient safety initiative using a patient safety reporting form helps in the identification of unrecognized ADRs in the ED.Date and Time Location Description Proudly sponsored by the Irish Arts Centre, Shancare Irish Festival are delighted to announce that the upcoming 2016 Edition of Shancare Irish Festival will be the third time that the festival has been organised at the Irish Centre.
