

Additional Pro Tactics includes nine new tactics modes, all of which have been created using the new HyperMotion Technology and AI. New tactical challenges include: Agent Skill Training – Every player in the squad has a new training mode containing various skills that must be mastered. Ultimate Attacking Mission – This mode challenges a player to score as many goals as possible by using an Arreiro (attacking player) and a Pichador (defender) to shoot at a goal. Goalkeeper Training – Goalkeeper training introduces a new Pass Map, where passing rates are inversely proportional to the difficulty of the pass. If the goalkeeper passes back, the difficulty increases and the goalkeeper must complete a number of difficult passes to reach a negative feedback zone. Match Prediction – In-match game analysis is used to predict the best way to win the match in a range of different conditions. Tracks the progress of a game simulation before, during and after the match. The Traces system (used in FIFA 19) returns, with more than 40 traces showing how a match develops and how you can use this information to assess and improve performance. All new “passing,” “striking,” and “re-positioning” animations, with a complete overhaul of the animation libraries in FIFA. A new “Bounce Projection” system, which ensures that the ball follows the pitch surface realistically and is aligned with the player’s run. Improvements to the “Run and Shoot” animation and ball physics. Improved goalscoring animations. New FIFA Champions League trophy, featuring a detailed metal base and trophy case in the middle of the table. Real-world stadiums in “real world” FIFA levels based on Manchester United’s old ground The Old Trafford, as well as Arsenal’s Emirates Stadium and the Juventus Stadium. New 1950s and 1960s-themed player kits. New Italian, American and Brazilian player kits. Completely redesigned motion capture suits, including a whole new upper body skeleton, a latex-inspired calf section, and detailed inner thighs. The latest update to the FIFA mobile esports platform gives players the opportunity to earn virtual currency, play on new modes and access new content. A total of 300 FIFA Points* will be awarded to users who complete weekly tasks, and users will also be able to earn more FIFA
